Biographical Note

Beulah White is an African American woman from Georgetown, South Carolina. She earned a Bachelor's Degree in English from Savannah State College in Georgia and is the author of an illustrated book of poems, Ladies in Hats.

White worked as the executive director of Baskervill Ministries, a local organization that brought arts and education to its community in Pawleys Islands, South Carolina. Some of the events organized under White's leadership include the Gumbo Stew Festival, the Martin Luther King, Jr. Leadership and Performing Arts Seminar, Saturday Learning Academy, Winter Arts Camp, Adult Day Care Center, Camp Summer Step, and the Black Storytelling Festival.

White was awarded the Unsung Hero Citation by South Carolina Governor Carroll Campbell, and in 1994 she received a three year study grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation for the Kellogg National Fellowship Program.

In March 2009, Beulah White and her daughter, Dayo White, plead guilty to embezzling money from a Georgetown County non-profit organization, Five Rivers Community Development Corporation. The pair was sentenced to five years probation and ordered to pay back restitution.

Beulah White has two other children, Yegide Boyd and Atu White.
